THE DAILY AVALANCHE

Colonel W. T. Thompson (Major Jones), one of the editors of the Savannah News and Herald, has returned from Europe.

Rev. Mr. Simpson is on trial at Exeter, England, on a charge of habitual intoxication in the public streets and in church.

The Peoria Transcript says that Mrs. Lincoln, like Grant, means to "fight it out on that line" when she's doing a clothes line.

Died, at New Orleans, on the 13th instant, Matt. G. Cunningham, a member of the Typographical Union, and formerly of Louisville, Kentucky.

The interest on the five-twenty bonds, payable annually, falls due on the 1st of November, and $24,000,000 in coin will be required to pay the same.

The new California process of extracting gold and silver will increase the demand for salt. Two hundred pounds of salt is used for each ton of ore.

On Wednesday evening, seven prisoners—Charles Tuedall, Jerry Driscoll, Charles Allen, John McGown, Patrick Dengan and Hugh Dowergan, the latter charged with murder—escaped from the jail at Dubuque, and as yet are still at large.

Our national affairs have indeed come to a pretty pass, says Wilkes's Spirit, when a gentleman cannot even take a moderate glass of whisky without an uneasy consciousness that he is an accomplice in one of the greatest swindles of the age.

Thos. J. Key, Esq., has sold his interest in the Corinth (Mississippi) Weekly News to his partners, Messrs. Milligan, who will continue to publish it. The daily not having sufficient patronage, has been suspended for the present.

Michael Phelan has invented a combination of dining table and billiard table. After dinner the top of the table is removed, as well as the cloth, and by turning a lever screw at one end, the bed of the billiard table, which then appears, is raised to a proper level.

The Montana Herald says they are plowing up gold on Helens' hill, where the ground pays at a depth of a few inches below the grass roots. Silver ore on Flint creek assays eleven thousand dollars to the ton. Mining reports are that splendid mines are discovered daily.

Mr. John Mitchell has issued in New York the first number of the Irish Citizen. It is a very handsome sheet, and full of that spirit, pith, and point, for which its editor is so distinguished. It will more than meet the expectations of his numerous friends, who no doubt counted largely upon it.

On Mr. Alexander's stock farm at Woodburn, Kentucky, there are one hundred and twenty brood mares of thorough blood running over its acres, one hundred cows, and eight hundred sheep of the finest varieties, just the half of the number before some epidemic swept over the flocks.

A decision has just been made by the Court of Appeals in New York, in a case in which the papers were served by Judge Cheever in the year 1827. The case involved the right of dower, and the property in debate increased twenty-five time its value at the commencement of the litigation.

The Athens (Georgia) Watchman announces the death of Major John K. Stanford, of Clarksville, Georgia, in the seventy-second year of his age. He died at his home, where he leaves a large family. Major Stanford was an old and prominent citizen of that section of the State.

The Thibodeaux Sentinel says, that the Police Jury of Pointe Coupee, have passed a law that all men between the ages of twenty and twenty-five shall be put to work on the levees. In default of the payment of the fine for non-compliance, the defaulter, whether white or black, will be sent to New Orleans, to the military prison.

The Duke of Argyll recently erected a Scotch granite monument in Kilchrenan church yard to the memory of the first of the Campbells. It has the following inscription: "Colleen Mor, slain on the Streang of Lorne, A. D. 1294. Erected by George Douglass Campbell, eighth Duke of Argyll, and twenty-eighth Baron of Lochawe."

Felix Quick has been arrested in St. Louis, for a murder committed four years ago, having shot an old man of seventy years, named James Hickenbottom, who lived near the border of the State, on the Iron Mountain road, and had laid up $715 in gold and silver, which the ruffian Quick and two companions with difficulty secured by hanging the mother and children to a tree till they were forced to divulge where the treasure was concealed.

Senator Sumner, says the Springfield Republican, can consistently support the establishment of equal suffrage in the States by act of Congress, for he has always held that Congress may constitutionally do whatever it thinks necessary in support of liberty. Not so, Mr. Stevens. He has always asserted that Congress had the right to abolish Civil Rights in the South only by right of conquest, and outside of the Constitution. He must subjugate Connecticut, Ohio, and the rest before he can go outside the Constitution to dictate terms of suffrage to them.

When the celebrated Lord Castlereagh was stopping once to change horses at some very poverty stricken post station in Ireland, his carriage was surrounded by beggars, who implored for charity. Taking no notice of their appeals, he sat cold and unmoved till his horses were ready to start, when a very miserable looking fellow approached the carriage and said, in a voice of persuasive delicacy: "One sixpence, my Lord—only one little sixpence, and it will treat all your friends in Ireland!"

William Perkins, Esq., of Pittsburg, met his death at Lakeville, Ohio, on Tuesday last. Mr. Perkins, with a number of friends, left Pittsburg on Friday last for Lakeville, on a hunting and fishing excursion. Tuesday morning the party were out on a hunting expedition, and Mr. Perkins was engaged loading his gun, when one of the dogs belonging to the party, in playing about Mr. Perkins' feet, by some means snapped the trigger of his gun, the shot striking his head, shattering it terribly and killing him almost instantly.

The impeachment scheme is not being pressed at present as it was some time ago, and there seems now no more prospect of its success than if it had never been broached. The Ohio Republicans in particular appear to have turned against it with great force. The two leading journals of the State, the Cincinnati Gazette and the Cincinnati Commercial, which have heretofore favored impeachment, have discussed the subject within the last few days in such a way as to show that the change of opinion has been very decided, and that they are now fixed and determined in opposition to the project.

The fastest four mile heat that ever was made in America was won by Lexington, owned by Ten Broeck, in seven minutes and twenty seconds, on the favorite track at New Orleans. Lexington's splendid son, Kentucky, attempted to rival this glorious feat at the Jerome Park, New York, on Thursday, but failed by 11 seconds, making the four miles in seven minutes and 31 seconds. Kentucky is owned by Leonard W. Jerome of New York, who paid for him $40,000. Kentucky was ridden by Charles L. Littlefield, and had four horses to accompany him at different points of the race. On the last half of the fourth mile the weight he was carrying began to tell on him and he sensibly shortened his stride. Time won the race, Kentucky being booked for seven minutes twenty seconds, and consuming seven minutes thirty-one and three quarter seconds in making the four miles.

THE POLICY OF THE YOUNG MEN OF THE SOUTH.

Speech of Ex-Governor Henry A. Wise, of Virginia.

Special Telegram to the Herald.]

WASHINGTON, October 16, 1867.
10 o'clock P.M.

The horticultural and pomological society of Virginia was opened to-night in Richmond. General Wise delivered the address. He commenced by saying that "never in the history of nations has revolution been more sudden, shocking and severing in its effects than the late conflict of State and Federal sovereignties in the United States, in respect to all our relations, political, social and economical. The constitution of federation has been broken and set at naught, its compacts have been consolidated in the irresponsible and unchecked power of arms, only through most of its units, and the other State constituencies or units in the minority have been metamorphosed into fractions or fragments of conquered provinces, in which the supremacy of civil law, civil rights, and civil jurisdiction has been dethroned by military domination. The result is, that the foundations of the whole late Union are shaken and shattered that no repairs only of the fabric can make it firm and stable again; but it must be entirely rebuilt anew, from corner stone to dome. The Union as it was does not exist, and States as they were have been demolished."

After describing the mode in which the Union was formed, he said:

"This common government was so plural in fact that it had no name in the singular number. Its very name is plural of States—the United States—not plural of people in the sense of population. There is a Maine man, a New Yorker, a Virginian, a Kentuckian, a North or South Carolinian, but even the great expounder himself was never so immodest as to call himself a United States man. He was a Massachusetts man, a son of the elder sister of Virginia, by which hailed her cheerily in the night of the revolution or rebellion against George the Third, by the grace of God King of Great Britain, when Virginia and Massachusetts were States, in the exercise of the rights of war, the highest act of sovereignty, before the United States even were. He then spoke of the manner in which Sergeant S. Prentiss made the two words "fellow citizens" embrace and express the full grandeur and greatness of our country, and inspire the holy sentiment to preserve, guard, perpetuate and defend it, and said:

Alas! we are no longer fellow citizens, no longer citizens. Our own, our native land, our civil liberty has departed; its governments, its State and federal, have been dissolved and changed. There are no longer any guarantees of the rights of the one or checks upon the powers of the other, and its soil has been trampled in mire and filth by the invasion of a fratricidal civil war. Where now is organic State identity? Where now internal sovereignty? Where now equal dignity? Where now self-protecting power or the ægis of constitutional law? Where now separate State independence? The wrecks of powers and of rights left to Congress by the fortunes of conquest and confiscation over districts numbered by proclamation. They have ordered the civil to be subordinate and obedient to the military authority. The conventional as well as the municipal powers and capacities of State peoples have been ignored, and enacted and proclaimed out of existence. The Executive courts rule and override the courts of the judiciary. The benches of justice are suspended by epauletted commissions, who need no sheriffs nor seargeants, nor marshals nor posse comitatus—who drill to order, who substitute criers and tip staffs with drum and fife, who serve no civil process, but note the minute of the proces verbal and are armed with gloves of steel to do martial execution. The free white people, who waked to manhood yesterday, are humbled to become the political slaves of the black freedmen of to-day. The American slaves of yesterday, the freedmen, not freemen, of to-day, are exalted to become the political black masters of the white freemen of yesterday. What a change in a single day! It was, rather, a night of the blackness of darkness of surrender. A surrender, not of the black man's chains so much as of the white man's natural rights of race and civil rights of citizenship. It was a change not from slavery to liberty of the one race, but a change of black slaves into black masters, a change of white masters into white slaves. Not a change of the Ethiopian's color and nature into white, nor a change of the Caucasian color and nature into black, but a change of the races, but a change reversing the relative conditions of the two races and merging the rights and relations of both under the limited, unchecked, undefined despotism. There is no more fellowship in citizenship. The vase of Union is broken, not cracked, merely. It is broken to pieces through and throughout, from tip to base. If held together, it is no longer in amity and peace, and by compact or agreement, or by ratification. It is now pinned by bayonets, bound by brute force, cemented, not by fraternal affection, not by common love of country, not by comradeship of common fate or fortune, or cause or sacrifice, or glory, or suffering, or triumph. But by no amalgam of the once united kind of cohesion in war, not yet in peace, friends. This revolution had wrought thorough and fundamental changes in our social system and our economy in every branch of business, particularly that of the culture of the land. The lands are all that are left us. They are the only fountains of our life, the only sources of our supplies. The only earnest of our renovation is the earth we live on, and the laboring [illegible] decaying waste. This land, of every land the pride, is bereft of its verdue, its blossom and and its bloom, its fruits and its flowers, of everything, except its ancient renown, its late glory in arms, and its present honor and pride. The former laborers have been enticed from the fields and are now the pupils of politics, the dupes of fanaticism "hussy-fuggied" by the fatal caresses of co-operations, and are but two cents to be the demoralized victims of the demagogues and whisky of elections, and to be decimated by the diseases of the now licensed vices of their race—laziness and lust. These changes demand an absolute change in agriculture, a change from the plantation to the farming system. This requires a new mode of culture, new laborers, new implements, new crops, more various, on a smaller scale, more contracted and concentrated, requiring more skill, more care and yielding the most profit on the smallest space. Virginians, if they would not be driven out from their own inheritance, should themselves go to this work of farming for themselves. They must not call on Hercules, nor Freedmen, nor German, nor Swede, nor immigrants from any clime.

After speaking of the favorable geographical position of the State, her soil, climate, mineral and other resources, he advised the landholders of the State to give every encouragement to our own white labor and the young men of the State to apply themselves to the study of agriculture as a science, they would save the real estate of their fathers and keep sacred the altars of their own birth places and homes.

It is far more honorable to do this, he said, than to skulk into professions by the back door and become pettifogging lawyers and quack doctors, who practice their arts to rob clients or kill patients, or to seek places in clerkships, or by drumming or running or standing and waiting at the beck and call of somebody else's business. It is much more respectable and certainly more independent. He appealed to the manly, proud, brave and strong men of the State who had neither means nor settled pursuit to adopt agriculture as a business, and concluded his address by an appeal to the young men of the State to labor earnestly and faithfully, never to despair, and they to-night have the assurance that better and happier days for them were in the near future.

A Jury of One Man.

Joe H—— is one of the characters of Lafayette township. Recently he was summoned to act as a juryman in a case being tried before a magisirate. He proposed to the parties in the suit that they allow him alone to act as the jury and decide the case. They agreed the evidence was heard, and Joe retired to make up his verdict. He soon procured a bottle of whisky, some crackers, a box of sardines, and a can of cove oysters from the defendant in the suit. He helped himself to as much as he wanted of the provisions and liquor, and quietly laid down in the room in which he was locked, and took a nap. He awoke toward evening, and reported that the "jury have not agreed upon a verdict," and sent the constable after the plaintiff, demanded more oysters, crackers, sardines and whisky. With these he spent the night, and had a good supply over for breakfast. He was again interrogated as to his verdict, and again answered, "the jury have not agreed." Towards noon, getting very thirsty, and unable to get supplies, Joe called in the constable, had himself conducted before the 'squire, and reported that it was impossible for the jury to agree, and was discharged. He says that where the eating and drinking is as good as in this case he don't mind sitting on a jury.—New Albany Ledger.

A large amount of wheat is being shipped from Lake Michigan ports to Montreal and other Canadian ports, whence it goes by the St. Lawrence to Europe. Eight cargos were shipped from Montreal last week from the single port of Milwaukee. One-fourth of the eastward movement of wheat for the week is destined for Canadian ports for export.

ARKANSAS ITEMS.

The Pine Bluff Dispatch, of the 12th, says: On Saturday last the Radicals held what they called a county convention for the purpose of selecting candidates for the State Convention. The following gentlemen were nominated: Captain S. W. Mallory, O. P. Snyder, Gray, (white) and Murphy, (colored). Now with standing the negroes have two to one in the county, they are only allowed one of the nominees. This is a striking example of the "equality before the law" doctrine. The colored people are justly incensed at the cold treatment they have received, and speak of running a full colored ticket. If they do so, it is sure to be elected. The convention was a fraud and swindle upon them, and is binding on no one. It will not be difficult to get out a colored ticket, which can defeat the mongrel one, and which will also have more ability, weight, influence and respectability.

The Arkansas Gazette of the 19th says: "This year's experience will be sufficient to convince the bravest friends of cotton culture that it must be abandoned at once or our planting community will be bankrupted. We understand that planters in this vicinity are now paying one dollar a hundred for picking cotton. This is equivalent to three and a half cents a pound for lint cotton, and to this add the tax, and one half the value of a pound of cotton in this market is consumed. Now is the time for sowing wheat, and we trust a large crop will be put in this year. Planters are under no obligations to ruin themselves by planting cotton merely to furnish employment to lazy, capricious negroes. Wheat is worth $2 50 per bushel in the Western markets. At this price its production would be profitable on any soil in the State. If a good crop is put in hereabouts the coming year, mills will be erected to convert it into flour here at home, and a ready market will be found for all that can be grown. The New Orleans market expects to obtain a large supply of its corn from Arkansas this year, as the crop of the West is very short. It will command a good price and prove a far more remunerative crop than cotton."

The Fort Smith Herald learns that "Dr. George G. Shumard, for many years a citizen of that place, and a noted Geologist and physician, died in Cincinnati on the 29th September, of paralysis."

S. W. Murphy has received the appointment of Postmaster at Fort Smith. He is a citizen of foreign birth, and the Radicals are indignant at his appointment.

Wm. Patterson, late Adjutant of the First Arkansas Infantry (Federal), has received a commission from the Governor as clerk of Sebastian county vice John S. Spradling, resigned.

The New Era says: "The contracts for corn were rented to Lieutenant Fort Gibson by Dr. C. Blackburn, of Texas, for twenty-four thousand bushels, at Fort Arbuckle, two thousand bushels monthly, at one dollar and eighty-seven and a half cents per bushel, and the well known firm of H. B. McKee of this city, for forty-eight thousand bushels, of which twelve thousand bushels are to be delivered en route from Gibson to Arbuckle, one thousand monthly, at one dollar seventy-two cents, and thirty-six thousand bushels at Fort Gibson, three thousand monthly, at ninety-seven cents per bushel. No charge to be made for sacks when so received, and the usual weight of fifty-six pounds to be the rule.

The Chicot Press says: "The cotton crop in this vicinity promises a better yield now than was expected a month ago. The ravages of the worm have not been so general as was at first anticipated. Planters are now busily engaged picking, and if all that is now matured can be saved, there will be on many places an average crop made."

Result of Yankee Duplicity.

From the Macon Telegraph, 18th.]

Many a poor, weak, silly Southern girl has cause to hold in endless remembrance Yankee duplicity in the desertion of soldier husbands—some of them officers at that. A case of this kind came under our observation yesterday.

A certain Major, who shall be nameless—and who came in with the army of occupation—so prevailed on one of these silly girls with his specious promises as to induce her to become his wife, though he never publicly acknowledged her as such to the brother officers. The girl, however, was satisfied with her dubious position, and being in the lower walks of life, and with no big brother to see her righted, was apparently happy in her new situation.

But marriage brings responsibilities, and one of the gravest of "responsibilities" was added to this ill-assorted household—a baby. The child grew apace, but so did not the bold soger boy's love for it and its mother. To him, on the contrary, the order mustering him out was most joyous tidings—giving him relief at one and the same time from a dependent life and a hated union.

It was an easy matter to persuade the "poor fool" that it was necessary for him to go "up North" first to prepare the "old folks at home" for the coming of his Southern rose and little blossom.

The gallant ex-son of Mars departed, and after long, anxious months waiting, watching and praying, hope departed from the breast of the wretched deserted wife, and she became convinced that she was indeed abandoned. To keep life in her frail body—that she might furnish sustenance to her baby—she became a pensioner upon the bounty of the city, and thus eked out a life of poverty and neglect.

But Heaven is more merciful than man; and the all-loving Father, ere the biting blast of chill winter came again to freeze the life-blood in the famine-pinched bodies of this suffering mother and child, sent the Angel of Death to bear the little one to where want and misery have no place—where eternal summer reigns—in the eternal gardens of Paradise—and the [illegible] broken-hearted mother was left free from her burden to battle with a cold and cheerless world for bread.

Placed in a pauper's coffin—its little limbs shrouded in the faded rags it had worn in life—its thin pinched features bearing the poverty marks too plainly to be mistaken—the body of this child of a heartless man and a weak, deserted, heart broken woman, was committed to a pauper's grave, there to slumber until it shall arise as an accusing angel to condemn to eternal torments the heartless wretch who consigned it to a living death in its brief existence upon earth.

The marriage of the King of Bavaria to a sister of the Empress of Austria will take place on the 12th instant.

LOST.

LOST—A BLACK THREAD LACE MANTILLA, between the Lyceum Opera House and Beale street market. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at the KEE MAR store, Main street.

WEDNESDAY, : : : : OCTOBER 23, 1867

If any pious antiquarian, in the madness of too much learning, desires to engage his leisure moments in hunting strange fossils and rare animals, we would advise him to turn his attention to an examination of the candidates who are now seeking office in the South. All of a sudden the filthy scum of creation has come to the surface. The smell of office has put a little army of scape-gallows' in motion. Wherever there is a bone to prig, there you will find some wezel-faced Yankee, some dirty vagabond from the North, or the meanest of all, a traitor to the Confederate cause, urging his peculiar claims for place and power. These political pirates are ready to board any vessels where they can steal and plunder. The words "office," "money," "power," "place," "theft," "robbery," will call up from their hiding places more battered mummies, more "JERRY SNEAKS," than there are autumnal leaves strewing the hills of Vallambrosa. We had supposed that Memphis had been selected as a Barathrum in which was to be cast all the filth and trash which the late war had thrown upon the surface; for at every election a putrid mass of place-hunters commence wriggling and working like maggots in a decaying carcass. The hope of office will bring these creatures from their dens as surely and rapidly as a strange noise will bring doodles from the dry ground. There are men in our midst who cannot brook the contempt their treachery and rascality has provoked, and they hide themselves from the scorn of those they have robbed and betrayed; but let it be announced that there is an office to give, or money to steal, and they will rush from their mouldy dens just as naturally as worms and bugs and butterflies come forth under the fructifying influence of a warm spring sun. But it seems all the dirt, slop, soot and smut of Radicalism has not been emptied into our unfortunate city, as we learn that the soil of Mississippi is being enriched with the same sort of guano. Our neighboring city, Holly Springs, has more than her share of the scum and dandruff which Radicalism is spanwing upon the country. An election is soon to be held for a State Convention in Mississippi, and of course traitors like ORR and FLOURNOY are whisking about like a corporal at a militia muster, while the little men and strange vagabonds are as busy as a bee in a tar-bucket. In Marshall county the Radicals have fished out of that obscurity in which he was reposing, or rather out of the sower in which he was wallowing, a fellow who glories in the name of NELSON G. GILL. From all accounts he is a model rascal, a low blackguard. Our readers will understand his character when we tell them that he is nearly as dirty a dog as HOUGH, RICHARDS or SMITH. GILL came to Holly Springs soon after the close of the war, as agent of that beautiful piece of furniture called the Freedmen's Bureau. He occupied the same position in Louisiana, but swindled the negroes to such an extent as to cause them to petition for his removal. In personal appearance he is represented as hideous, ugly—theoretically, practically, decidedly ugly. We are told that he looks like a cross between a gorilla and a Spanish pack saddle. His head looms up like a pyramid of jelly, or a sugar loaf, and is so sharp on top that it serves as a horn, with which he can bore his way into his neighbor's corn crib or hen roost. His face looks like a shriveled pumpkin or a green gourd. Under the place where the forehead ought to be, he has two little foxy eyes, which twinkle and dance till they rest upon a greenback, then they become as fixed and rigid as the eyes of an Egyptian mummy. In the center of the face, there sticks out a something that looks like afoul India rubber pipe stem, dripping with ambier, which some people call a nose. The mouth would do credit to a cat fish. Flakes of flesh hang down around it, like those on the jole of a fat mastiff. The chin comes down like the little end of an egg, and is fortunately covered with hair. All the other features of the face are envions of the lucky chin, and deplore that they cannot be covered up too. GILL's great beauty consists in the hump upon his back. This lump of valuable flesh is as large as the ump upon a hickory tree. It would excite the envy of an Eastern dromedary, or an old fashioned belle. Whether, like the hickory tree, GILL carries his punk in this protruberance, his brains, or his stealings, we are unable to say; but it is certainly a worthy ornament in the rear for the charming face in front. GILL and his washer-woman once had a dispute about a small bill, and the result is there is a great antagonism between that useful and indispensable lady, and his shirts, and of course his linen is as much defiled as his mind is impure, and his body is as dirty as his heart is corrupt. He is stilted up on a couple of bean-poles, on one end of which there are a pair of pigeon toed feet covered by coarse shoes as much a stranger to blacking and brushes as their proprietor's shirt is to soap and water. In brief, GILL looks as though he had been moulded out of morter from a filthy mud-hole and then dried in a brick kiln. Ugly as he is his politics are still more hideous. If nature was a niggard to him in making his casket, she was still more niggardly in filling it. It is impossible for pure liquor to dwell in such an unclean vessel. It is not therefore surprising that such a grotesque, humpbacked monstrosity should carry within a hidious soul surcharged with corruption, bigotry and hate. GILL is traversing North Mississippi organizing Loyal Leagues. He has just made a peregrenation through Panola and DeSoto counties, frightning women and children, with his ugly presence and insulting decent men with his infamous abuse. His language is said to be incendiary and insulting beyond endurance, and we would not be surprised if forbearance some day ceased to be a virtue, and the foul tongue of this blackhearted villain was cut from his sooty mouth. The worm will at last turn upon the heel that grinds it in the dirt, and an Illinois woodchopper cannot always traduce and calumniate an inoffensive people with impunity. The assassins of liberty, the enemies of peace, the robbers of the tax-payer and the slanderers of a people who are quietly seeking to rebuild their shattered fortunes, will some day be overtaken by that retributive justice which their conduct so richly merits. JIM WILLIAMS, the creature heretofore alluded to by us, is another candidate for the Convention on the same ticket. He is a worthy associate for the incomparable GILL. Beautiful couple! Par nobile fratrum. A negro by the name of EDMONDSON is the third candidate on the same ticket. He is said to be the most decent man of the three; but he will share the same fate of TRAY, who was caught in bad company.

Shades of PRENTISS, QUITMAN and McNUTT! your graves are being defiled by wolves and jackalls! The State which your eloquence, statesmanship and patriotism made immortal is now desecrated! The places you once filled will soon be occupied by negroes—by worthless lazaroni and lousy vagabonds! Such shame and humiliation is surely enough to make every proud and noble Mississippian indorse the immortal MCCLUNG's invocation to Death, when he beautifully sang:

Swiftly speed o'er the waves of time,
Spirit of Death!
In manhood's morn, in youthful prime,
I woo thy breath!
For the fading hues of hope have fled
Like the dolphin's light,
And dark are the clouds above my head
As the starless night!

Oh! vainly the voyager sighs for the rest
Of the peaceful haven—
The pilgrim saint for the homes of the blest
And the calm of Heaven!
The galley slave for the night-wind's breath,
At the burning noon!
But more gladly I'd spring to thy cold arms,
Death!
Come soon!

THE first side of the AVALANCHE this morning contains a speech of EX-Governor HENRY A. WISE, of Virginia, which is full of the eloquence, genius, and intellect of that great and eccentric statesman. Though what we publish is but a mere sketch of his effort on that occasion, it indicates clearly the points of his masterly address, and testifies the possession by him still of those great powers which have made him famous for nearly forty years in American political history. It is to his advice to the young men of the South that we desire to attract particular attention. The Southern States are daily becoming less inviting under the influence of their present governments, the failure of crops, oppressive taxations, and all the other ills, natural and artificial, which can be conceived of, to weigh down and destroy the prospects of a country and the fortunes of its people. This must of course retard the introduction of fresh capital amongst us, for a time, and must teach us to rely as much as possible upon our own resources, and to exercise our capacities to their utmost extent for the recovery of lost ground, and to prevent the process of continued depreciation. Negro labor is becoming daily less reliable, and large expectations in planting depending upon it must, from prudential, if not insurmountable and arbitrary reasons, be abandoned. Cotton has ceased to be profitable in its culture in the States of the South, and must become subordinate to the production of other articles of agriculture. The South must cease to be dependent for its necessary supplies of food and clothing upon any other States or section. The economy of the late war must be practiced even to a more rigid extent than during its progress. The young men of the country must go into the field, and handle the plow with the same fearless energy that they did the rifle. Let them put in agriculture the degree of self-denial, the inexorable discipline, the easy grace, with which they abandoned luxuries, the prudence with which they expended their money, because of its scarcity, a quality it now has, the labor with which they created breast works and fortifications, the toil which they endured without murmur, carrying picks and shovels on long marches to erect the means of their own protection and their country's defense; and let them march after the plow with the same untiring zeal with which they pursued the long and tedious marches of their campaign. In fact, let them practice all of the endurances of their army life, except their battle encounters, though they must display even the coolness and fortitude which distinguished them in those, and in the same length of time that they expended in the war the South will be lifted from under the load of material and financial misfortune which now staggers her; she will have achieved an undisputed agricultural independence, and they will be rooted deep in prosperity as land owners, though they may be only small ones, and will be possessed of an independent future, which nothing but their own idleness or dissipation can wrest from them. The morbid appetite of the young men in the country to come to the city and get situations must be discouraged, and the idle young men in the cities who are wasting time waiting for something to turn up, which will never turn up, must be made conscious that the field is the place for them and that they must become producers instead of thriftless and invaluable consumers. Every infinitesimal part of white labor in the South must be put into action and made to work to retrieve its lost fortunes, its decaying agriculture, and its financial liberty. Without these she can make no availing effort to recover her political independence. Her history will be but the history of all peoples who, situated like her, have chosen rather to throw away the opportunity with themselves to help themselves, and to pine and dwarf away in the contemplation of what they have been, and are not, instead of sternly facing the exigencies of the occasion, and by muscle devoted to legitimate labor, encountering and overcoming them.

THE election of United States Senator commenced yesterday, with undefined result. According to dispatches from Radical sources, Governor BROWNLOW is finding the Senatorial Jordon a hard road to travel. The last ballot left him two short of a majority in the House and lacked two of reaching STOKES in the Senate. It must have been exceedingly grateful to the—shall we call him Governor?—to find STOKES sticking in his way like a pall-sade. The Governor may yet realize himself the fancied candidate, but he has found himself confronted by STOKES. We all know STOKES—when ETHERIDGE showed him up here. Yet he is a better man than BROWNLOW, unless it were possible to be worse.

General Hayes, Governor elect of Ohio, in a speech at Fremont, the other day, said that General Grant was already nominated for the next Republican candidate for the Presidency.

The Chicago Times dwells upon the loss of the German vote, by the Republicans in the late elections, and observes that, as slavery no longer exists in this country, the free-thinking Germans will gradually drift back to the Democratic party, which they left because they hated slavery. This, the Times contends, they will do because the Democracy are with the Germans in opposition to Sunday laws and prohibitory liquor laws, and in advocacy of the largest liberty.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, October 22.

Fever interments for the twenty-four hours ending at six o'clock this morning, thirteen.

The greater portion of the emigrants by the bark Doretta, were taken aboard the steamer Stonewall, for St. Louis.

"OFFICE OF PICAYUNE.—We regret to announce the death of our senior associate editor, George Wilkins Kendal. By telegram from San Antonio, we learn this sad event took place at his residence at Post Oak Springs, yesterday evening, at nine o'clock, caused by congestive chills. Mr. Kendal was about sixty years of age. He leaves a wife and four children.

"A. M. HOLBROOK."

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, October 22.

A Buenos Ayres letter of September 14th says Cordova had experienced another revolution, but it was promptly quelled after a short fight.

The minister of foreign relations for the Argentine republic has resigned on account of the impossibility of defeating the Paraguayans.

General Osboth, United States Minister, is still very low.

The Presidential election takes place in January, and the most influential paper in the country has nominated Saramento, present minister at Washington, for the position.

Advices from Peru to the end of September state that the city of Arquessi is entirely in the hands of the revoiutionists, and is being fortified. Their programme is the overthrow of the administration of Peralta, the restitution of the constitution of 1854 and the reforms of 1860, and the recognition of Colonel Canevesco as the constitutional head of the republic. The clergy, people and troops around Arquessi is said to fraternize with the revolutionists.

LOUISVILLE.

LOUISVILLE, October 21.

River falling slowly. Twenty-five inches in the canal by the mark.

General Weitzel and surveying party are surveying the Louisville and Portland canal.

The Portland and New Albany ferries have laid up, on account of the channel filling up. Skiffs are plying in their place.

ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, October 22.

Wm. Murphy, steamboat burner, released last week by the United States Circuit Court, was ordered to be taken to the Western District of Tennessee, there to await such proceedings as may be instituted against him by the civil courts.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, October 22.

The President has directed a reservation for military purposes at Fort Wardsworth, Dakotah, covering one hundred and thirty-five square miles.

Coxton, the Controller of Currency, has received all quarterly reports from the National Banks, except the First National Bank of Fort Smith, Arkansas. An abstract of their condition, classified by States and cities, will be ready for publication on Saturday.

FORTRESS MONROE.

FORTRESS MONROE, October 22.

The election at Norfolk is not yet complete. The polls reopen to-morrow. Whites, 1,384; blacks, 1,692. Waller, Conservative, supposed elected.

HAMPTON.

HAMPTON, VA., October 22.

Colonel White, Radical, elected here. No excitement.

ALEXANDRIA.

ALEXANDRIA, October 22.

Hawkburst, from this place, and McKerson, from Alexandria and Fairfax, both Radicals, are elected to the Convention. May, for Convention, 500 in Alexandria. Blacks for Radicals and whites for Conservatives, with few exceptions.

AUBURN.

AUBURN, October 22.

Secretary Seward finished here to-day the business which called him from Washington, which was the erection of a monument to his deceased wife. It is a work of exquisite beauty. Secretary Seward left for Washington this morning, in company with the Spanish and Italian Ministers, who accompanied him hither.

RICHMOND.

RICHMOND, October 22.

The election passed off more quietly than was expected. Several attempts at disturbance were quelled by the military. The difficulties were caused by an attempt of some Radical blacks to mob colored Conservatives. Troops were held in reserve on Capitol square, and stationed at all points in the city. The result of the first day's voting is 567 white majority. The canvass is active; 2,200 whites have not yet voted. The Radicals are making an effort to have the polls open three days. The military, under General Granger, and the city police, will be kept on duty all night. The polls reopen to-morrow. It is impossible to tell how the State has gone.

FOREIGN.

PARIS, October 22.

The Moniteur, in an official article announcing the cessation of warlike preparations against Italy, says: "When France beheld the spectacle of the invasion of the Papal States by armed forces from the neighboring Provinces of Italy, she could not consistently, with her duty, dignity, and her national honor, suffer the September Convention to be thus violated. She was prepared to send an army across the Alps, but Italy has since given ample pledge to fulfil her obligations of the treaty in the largest issue, and consequently all hostile preparations have been suspended by France."

PARIS, October 22.

Reports say Garibaldi has succeeded in reaching Italy, and is now with his son, Menotte.

The ministerial crisis is not yet ended. General Cialdini has been unable to form a new Cabinet, and has given up the task. Ratazzi may possibly remain in office, with perhaps a change in the ministry.

Political agitation is very great throughout Italy, extreme feeling being shown against France, while the government of the King is loaded with reproaches by people for yielding to the dictation of Napoleon. Several demonstrations of indignation have been made in this city. Great crowds gather beneath the windows of the Government offices and shout for "Rome, the Capital of Italy!"

BERLIN, October 22.

It is reported that the Grand Duchy of Baden will soon join the Confederation of the North German States.

Major General Pleasanton's resignation has been accepted.

The steamer Ollie Sullivan sunk near Newberg, Indiana, Friday night.

Ice was formed at Bloomfield, Perry county, Pennsylvania, last Tuesday morning.

The newspaper men in Washington were dined and wined by the proprietors of Willard's Hotel, the other day.

The white majority in seventy-one counties of the State of North Carolina, reported as official, is 22,837.

Four men got aboard the Mobile train at Bowling Green, on Friday night, and robbed one man of three hundred and fifty dollars, and another of a gold watch and four hundred dollars.

Joseph Bartlett was deliberately shot dead by Edward Scanlan, in Cleveland, Ohio, the other morning, because the former's dog had bitten Scanlan's son.

England is still adding to her iron-clad navy. By the last English mail it is announced that another large vessel of the size of the Minotaur is to be constructed, and the contract for building her will soon be awarded.

The United States Court, Judge Trigg, convened in Nashville on Monday, but business will probably be retarded in consequence of the want of a District Attorney. The place is vacant, and the President, under the tenure of office act, is unable to appoint.

The editor of the Charlotte, North Carolina, Democrat saw a lump of gold last week weighing six pounds, which was found in Union county, in that State. It must have been left or lost there. No such rich surface layers are on this side of Pike's Peak.

The cattle plague in England has at last about died out. During the week ending September 21st, not a single case was reported in any part of the British Isles. Thus far 278,957 cattle have been attacked by the plague and 56,911 healthy cattle have been slaughtered to prevent the spread of the disease.

A fight between a grizzly bear and a Mexican bull was one of the attractive amusements furnished to the people of Omaha on Saturday. Finding himself in danger of taking a horn too much, grizzly jumped the enclosure, to the consternation of horses and spectators. He was recaptured with a lasso.

It is reported that a reduction of ten per cent., in the wages of some of the Hartford (Connecticut) factory employees has been rendered neccessary by the dullness of business. Similar dullness in trade is reported from Great Britain, and it is stated that no less than twenty to thirty thousand men connected with the iron trade on the Clyde have been thrown out of employment owing to the successful competition of foreign with the home manufacture of the British Isles.

The Washington Chronicle of the 20th has a paragraph stating that Mr. Wilson, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has written here that he has expressed no opinion on impeachment outside of the Committee. This effectually disposes of the story so persistently reiterated, within a few days, that a majority of the Committee have come out in favor of impeachment. Of course nothing can be settled officially in the premises until the meeting on November 15, when the Committee take up the question for the first time since the 20th of July.

On Monday, near Nashville, B. F. Foster, son of the late Senator Foster, while riding home in his buggy, was shot by E. H. Douglass, son of Bird Douglass, a merchant of Nashville. Douglass was accompanied by his brother. Foster was wounded in the hand and breast, though not dangerously. The parties occupy a high social position, and the affair excites much discussion. Colonel Stone, Police Commissioner, bound the Douglasses over to the Criminal Court for trial, each giving bond or $2, 000.

Messrs. Myer & Lahey's jewelry store, St. Louis, was robbed on Monday night of articles valued at $10,000 or $15,000, consisting principally of watches. All the watches in the safe were taken, including between seven and nine dozen silver watches of all patterns and improved manufacture, packed in boxes containing each; about three dozen gentlemen's gold watches, some of them very fine; over twenty-one ladies' gold watches, most of them hunting case, and a number of diamond rings. The building was entered through the skylight.

DIED.

Of congestion, MINNIE, only daughter of George and Perpenia Hook, aged two years and three months.

The friends of the fam ly are requested to attend the funeral this day at two o'clock p. m., from their residence on Clay street, east of DeSoto. Clay street is south of South street.

A Card.

THE conduct of the Gas Company toward me, as the Crystal Palace, has been so outrageous that I deem it proper to make a statement of the same that the many customers of the establishment may know the reason gas is no longer used. At the request of one thousand dollars I had put fifteen burners through out the house. The gas bills, about thirty-five dollars per week, have been paid with promptness regularity. What was my astonishment, when called upon to pay or give my note for $181 for bringing the gas pipe from the main on Front street to the saloon, may be imagined. I positively refused to comply with what I deemed an unjust and unlawful exaction, which was evidently an after thought, and sprung from motives of a very sordid nature. If it be the custom, I have yet to learn it, and regard it as an act of despotism to which I am unwilling to submit. In my absence from the saloon, the meters were removed, which, I should certainly not have permitted if I had been present. When such high handed outrage can be committed, and that with impunity, as it seems, I feel I been derelict in paying all proper bills, I could have made no objection, but when they were paid, and only an unjust claim remained, to make me pay for bringing the pipe to the alley on which the saloon stands, I declined to be so, victimized by the fraud of a Company, which is admitted of all hands to be soulless. The merchant who wishes to sell goods, must open his door, and the Company that desires to dispose of its gas should introduce its pipes in the convenience of its customers. Since I have been in business, I have not paid less than $10,000 to the Company, and the public would scarcely believe that such a return would be made to so prompt a customer.

AUCTION.

Suburban Residence
AT PUBLIC SALE.

WE will sell to the highest bidder, ON THURSDAY, October 31, at 12 o'clock, at our Salerooms, No. 24 Second street, the pleasant Suburban Residence occupied by Charles Mosby, Esq., just south of Union avenue, in the desirable neighborhood of Rev. Mr. Young, Mr. Estes, Mr. Harbut and others, three miles east of the city.

The place contains about four acres, with a good dwelling for a small family; fine water, and an orchard of fruit trees, apple, peach, pear, etc.

The owner is determined to sell WITHOUT RESERVE, and upon easy terms, one-fifth (1/5) cash, and the balance on one and two years with interest.

Public Sale
OF
300 ACRES SUBURBAN LAND
ON TEN YEARS' CREDIT.

I PROPOSE to sell at public sale, to the highest bidder on THURSDAY, the 14th of November, 1867, about three hundred acres of land situated on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, 2775 Main street, Memphis Tract, situated three miles east of Memphis, at the head of Union avenue, and lying between Central avenue and the Old State Line road. The most popular street pavements being now in process of construction in Memphis, good carriage drives or driveways on the roads leading from the city directly through this property, must soon follow. Immediately adjoining on each remarkable portability of the great and rapid enhancement of value.

Having the advantages of this property, I would specially refer to the HEALTH of the locality as having been always considered equal if not superior to that of any portion of the city environs; while the high character of the neighborhood, and the provisions made for CHURCH and SCHOOL PRIVILEGES, combine to render it one of the most eligible points for a well built suburban residence which the vicinity of Memphis affords.

The TITLE to this property has been vested in my father

GALLAWAY, HERSH & CLUSKEY.

DEATH OF AN OLD NEWSBOY.—Peter Mullins, who for a long time ran as a newsboy on the Charleston road, died at Grand Junction, on Sunday, of bilious fever. Peter was a good boy; attended to his duties faithfully, and made a host of friends by the many genial qualities of his character. His friends will be gratified to learn that Mrs. H. P. Miller, of the Stonewall House, showed him every attention in his last illness.

Emmons & Son, Nos. 10 Jefferson street and 308 Main street, have received Waverley Magazine, Wilkes' Spirit, the Commercial and Financial Chronicle, Police News, Frank L. Harper's Weekly, Round Table, Jolly Joker for November, Sunday Magazine, Good Words for October, Hours at Home, and Boys and Girls' Weekly Pastime for part for November), London Art Journal for October, and Every Saturday for October, Harper's Magazine for November, and dailies from everywhere.

THE COMMON LAW COURT VACANCY.—Governor Brownlow has proceeded with almost indecent haste to temporarily provide for the completion of the session of the Common Law Court, whose proceedings were abruptly terminated a few days ago by the sickness and death of Judge Thomas G. Smith. He has appointed J. O. Pierce, Esq., special judge, and the business of the Court will soon proceed. Mr. Pierce ranked as Major on General Washburn's staff, during a portion of the war, and succeeded Judge Perkins as Judge Advocate.

Ed. Worsham, 22 Jefferson street, AVALANCHE Building, received by last night's mail, Waverley Magazine, Wilkes' Spirit of the Times, Base Ball Chronicle, Police News, Police Gazette, Round Table, Harper's Bazar of Fashion, Army and Navy Journal, and back numbers of the New York Weekly, Atlantic Monthly, for November; Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, Godey's Lady's Book, for November; Harper's Monthly, for November; London Art Journal, etc., which Colonel Ed. sells for $1 25.

We trust that there will be a full attendance at the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon, and that its active co-operation will be effected in the movements now being made throughout the country to secure the repeal of the cotton tax. The eyes of the business men of the North are being opened to the enormity and oppression of this legislative imposition, and it is gratifying to see that, to some extent, the move to that end is without distinction of party. The tax was levied as an instrument of financial torture, and it remains to be seen if, when it can be defended upon no grounds of public policy, and can be shown it has punished more severely the men of its inventors, than the white planter for whom it was devised, if even Radicals can stand the ruin which a persistence in it entails. This is the kind of argument for the Chamber of Commerce to throw before the Congress. It is the only Congressional eye opener we know of.

NEW MEMPHIS THEATER.—We have not the highest admiration for the Pearl of Savoy, as a play, although it affords situations, and there are incidents, of which a genius like Miss Emilie Mellville's can take advantage. A less admirable actress, or one who can have fewer reasons to warp her audience, might fail in imparting interest to so slight a story, hanging on so slender a thread, with such trivial incident leading to the denouement. Though that the old story be repeated, though that the "Pearl" be drawn away from the old home-hills, and the shepherd's call that sounds so sweetly to the accustomed ear—though that innocence be made the prey of design, and pass through travail and remorse and retribution are the end, it is a meagre plot, indifferent languages, and unworthy the role of the spirituelle commedienne. We have several times reported to the piece, by her genius, almost all in which it lacked. Miss Melleville and Lady Don will play this evening for the benefit of the helpless and unprotected. They are both angels in this mission, and while they give their time and talent and attainments, is there not a whispering power—"These are thine own"?

PHŒNIX MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. S. D. McCLEAN, Esq., of this city, has become agent of this staunch and successful company, for the States of Tennessee and Arkansas. The assets of the company amount to rising $2,000,000, and its business is managed with consummate ability, enabling it, as is published with its pamphlet advertisement, to pay dividends annually of fifty per centum. What permanent investment can favorably compare with it? True, in these times, when every sacrifice is made to sustain credit and pursue a commercial power, those who have capital to invest are "cautious" any hesitate of their investment; but where is the investment that pays one or two per cent per month, but is illegitimate, and a sudden loss of principal as well as interest would be just retribution. The Phœnix Mutual," of Hartford, Connecticut, has been in successful operation since 1851. Its directors are gentlemen of the highest character in the financial circles of Hartford and New York, and it is commended in that "full confidence of the public" by the presidents of all the banks of Hartford, and the Banking and Insurance Chronicle says of it: "Some of the young and vigorous companies, and, in one instance, one of the old stanch companies—has done itself immeasurable honor by coming out boldly and abolishing the odious restrictions on travel and changes of occupation, and the rapid increase of its business shows that an appreciative public is not indifferent to those who have its best interests in view." The National Quarterly Review, in speaking of insurance companies, remarks: "But there are some so-called old or 'tea and toast' companies, whose policies are as sure when due as bank checks. This is eminently true of the Phœnix Mutual, which has recently adopted several new features all the most desirable features in life insurance. The directors have declared every policy non-forfeiting; they also give the holders of endowment policies peculiar advantages." The income for the past year is said to have "approximated pretty closely to a million."

This company, in establishing an agency here, has been fortunate in securing the service of Mr. A. D. McCLEAN, a young gentleman favorably known in connection with the Franklin Insurance company, of this city. His large acquaintance with business men, and his familiarity with business, will constitute advantages of which few can boast, in representation of his company. His office is No. 12 Jefferson street, where he will be gratified to serve his friends by insuring their lives in this eminent institution—the most popular mode of life insurance, the most certain, and by far the cheapest.

The Late B. F. Blackburn, Esq.

At an adjourned meeting of the members of the Memphis bar, held at the criminal court room, on the 22d of October, the committee appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the bar, upon the death of our professional brother, B. F. Blackburn, Esq., reported the following:

We, the members of the Memphis bar, have met on this solemn occasion to bow our heads in humiliation before the Giver of all goods, and to drop a tear of sorrow upon the grave of our departed brother, Breckinridge F. Blackburn.

We deplore in death a great loss to our profession, the friend and companion of our friend and social companion, whose bright countenance, beaming with intelligence, and whose winning, gentle ways will no longer grace our presence.

He was a lawyer of great ability, and just in his dealings with his fellow man, and in all the relations of life he was an exemplary and accomplished gentleman.

We can but deplore his loss with unaffected sorrow; grieve that we shall never see his face again, and tender our deep, heartfelt sympathies to that one of all others of whom he loved to well to look, and whose presence was the sunlight of his noble soul. To her, his little ones, and his bereaved relatives, we can only say we mourn with you and will ever hold his memory sacred, and strive to emulate his virtues.

ED. A. REDDICK,
J. R. HUSKEY,
T. D. ELDRIDGE,
JNO. R. FLIPPIN,
Committee.

Robert Hutchinson, Esq., seconding the adoption of the resolutions, addressed the meeting appropriately upon the life, character and high professional standing of the deceased.

On motion of Mr. J. W. Westcott, it was—

Resolved, That a copy of the proceedings of this meeting be presented to the different courts of the city, with the request that the same be spread upon the minutes, and that the Secretary be directed to furnish a copy to the family of the deceased; and that the city papers be requested to publish the same.

The following members of the bar were appointed to present the proceedings to the different courts: Chancery Court: Robert Hushshaw; Law Court, John S. Kerr; Criminal Court, Charles S. Cameron; Circuit Court, J. R. Flippin; Municipal Court, J. W. Westcott.

On motion of S. P. Ross, Esq., the meeting adjourned.

T. W. BROWN, Chairman.

Endemics and Epidemics.

BY J. D. STILLMAN, M. D.

There is a harmony of moral and physical causes to produce the beneficient operations of natural existence and happiness. The unfortunate evils of war write "Mene! tekel upharsin!" not more upon general prosperity, morality and science, than upon the physical constitution that suffers from famine and pestilence, as natural results. During war the uncultivated fields grow up to rank and poisonous vegetation. This generates poisonous miasma—malarial vapors, which produce a negative condition to electrical influence. It accumulates, and the condensations finally repell the clouds and electrical currents that produce thunder, lightning and rain, so that the condition of the atmosphere becomes unbalanced, and vegetative growth becomes deficient as a result. With frequent rains, cold vapors are brought to the earth, the stirring of the soil causes them to be regenerated from it, and through vegetation to the air, so that the equilibrium of acid and alkaline vapors are then kept up to produce electricity, proper vegetation and life. But when the soil is not stirred, the acids unite with alkaline bases in the soil, to produce a dense poisonous vegetation, which stifles the breath in a midsummer's sun. Every country physician will be reminded of his intractible or lingering cases being situated in low houses, in low places, surrounded by thick profuse vegetation through which he finds only a narrow path to the house. The accumulation of alkaline vapors drives the electrical currents north, as it did last year, when the vapors followed them, to obey the law of electrical attraction, till the North was deluged in the fall with rain. The winter snows followed; a cold and severe winter was the result, which destroyed the vegetables and fruits. To this was added continued spring rains, which, with the heavy melting snows, deluged the South with overflows, depositing material for a rank and succulent vegetation, which generates still more alkaline vapor, till in its condensed form, it becomes the terrible malaria that produces complicated severe and malignant fevers. Such increased malarial causes have their influence in producing bilgid, imperfect fruits and vegetables, and they in turn from their diseased condition, combine with malarial causes to make the diseases more severe. They had their effect in the earlier part of the year, to produce the intestinal disturbances that were combined with malarial disease. From the same atmospherical causes they were irritating and unhealthy. With their early malarial causes there was probably combined the sulphurated hydrogen, gassious combinations, that produce the dysenteric influences and alimentary disturbances. They were changed by the sudden and heavy showers which they may have had some agency in causing. But when the carbureted hydrogen of later swamp vegetation, united with the alkaline malaria, there were manifested the fatal and deathly effects of such condensed malarial influence over which showers have but little power comparatively, but which, like the steams of the desert, sweep along the currents from south to north, to produce eventually disease in high latitudes. It seems that from this negative electrical repellant power that vapor clouds only appeared to be repelled by it or attracted north, consequently the electricity generated in the air, or the system south, and life seem to hang upon a little thread. There does, indeed, seem a condition of lassitude from these accumulative causes. They represent the miasma also in the vegetable food that is itself deficient, also of the same necessary elements of life by virtue of the same atmospheric influence. To this deficient oxygenization is added the deficiency in the salts of lime, magnesia, soda, and other salts, which, of course, must necessarily be deficient in the food; hence, also, has the system only a partial basis nutriment in the food. Debilitated by degrees from want of blood and tissue bases, it resists but feebly the influence of complicated malarial diseases. The low lands of Texas were first to feel the paralysing effects of the dreadful, pestiferous influence, which changed in form as it advances through other climates, but which will present, ere the season has ended, still more fatal diseases, which may appear all over the land to spread sorrow and mourning over both North and South. These influences are not confined to cities, and are more general according to the population, in many localities in the country than in towns; hence, the flying from them in one place is but to find the same or worse influence in another. The severer forms of disease will increase with the advance of the season, advances, when there will be a more severe complication of all the same diseases, in the form of cerebro-spinal meningetis, black tongue, putrid typhus, erysipelatinus and contagious conditions of the severe malarial and scarlatte influences that everywhere exist. Consequently, the selection of the best food becomes a preventive means as a basis of rational resistance to causes which must produce their legitimate effects. These natural conditions are suggestive toward a proper treatment, which would embrace restorative, as well as eliminants of malaria, so as to fortify the system against periodical habitudes, induced by malarial causes, as well as by the anti-periodics, which have no small influence in producing ultimate and fatal congestions. The direction and force of arial currents have much to do with the progress of disease in one place, which may be transported to another by the changing winds or barometrical condition of the air. Needless exposure at early morning, during the night air, or intense mid-day heat, should be avoided, the system kept in good condition, and much of the ravages of pestilence may be avoided. The use of perfectly ripe acid fruits and drinks combat both the scorbutic and malarial conditions, and their combinations with iron form a firmer basis of resistance in the system to its effects. There is moral heroism and bravery in rationally meeting the causes of ills upon legitimate grounds; and there is also more safety in it. For it must always rest heavily upon the heart to have friends in disease and distress, expecting to find greater happiness and greater complacency of conveniences, or peace of mind, in the selfish considerations which ignore the wants of the suffering destitute and abandoned. The building of benifices and the many other suggestive means of philanthropy would far more ennoble the character than the bravery of the battlefield, full of passion and ambitious patriotism. As the preservation of life is more noble than its destruction, so is heroism in its defense more glorious where the only foe is disease and death.

"PA IS DYING!"—That was the sound that reached our ears, as by our door in the long gallery, a little boy's feet patted so reach a door beyond, and his infant voice appealing to the nurse, cried, "Annie! Annie, pa's dying." Oh! there was in that childish voice, asking for help of one who in such extremity could give no help, that sprang right to the heart and left an indelible impress there. There was a pathos in the appeal —a call that could not be denied—"Annie, pa's dying." That little boy had felt the presence of the over-arching angel, and there was the sublimity of innocence in his appeal. He could not dwell with death. He was afraid. Yet the long lingering footsteps of the unerring hunter fell not there, though sure to come, and the little lad, once reassured, soon fell asleep, though on the couch still breathed and sought to live the sufferer, who was pining fast away.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething, greatly facilitates the process of teething, by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation; will allay all pain and spasmodic action, and is sure to regulate the bowels. Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and relief and health to your infants. We have put up and sold this article for years, and can say in confidence and truth of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—never has it failed in a single instance to affect a cure, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operation, and speak in terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "what we know," after years of experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfillment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. Be sure and call for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. # RIVER NEWS.

AVALANCHE OFFICE,
WEDNESDAY, October 23.

BUSINESS—WEATHER—RIVERS.

A rain set in on Monday night, and lasted until nearly noon yesterday. The weather now bids fair to remain unsettled for some time, and has turned quite cold. There is the same old song to sing of low water at all points. From here to New Orleans boats are having trouble at different points, but Pawpaw, Brainsburg and Hole-in-the-Wall are the worst places. There is but little of anything over six feet at either of those places.

ARRIVALS.

DEPARTURES.

Steamer H. Adkins, St. Louis.
" T. L. McGill, St. Louis.

IN PORT.

Victor, Rose Hambleton, Dan Able, Gleaner, Goldfinch and Guldon.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Business was dull on the landing yesterday, which is not a usual thing on Tuesday.

We received a letter from Captain Sam. H. Shock, yesterday, dated Hickman, on the 19th, in which he stated he and part of his family, who were with him, were in good health. A dispatch was received from St. Louis, announcing the death of his eldest daughter, in St. Louis, yesterday morning.

The Paragon is the regular St. Louis packet for this evening. Captain Sam. McPheeters is in commmand, and is one of the best officers in the line. Mr. McCreight is purser.

The Rose Hambleton has discharged her trip and will not go to White river. She will lay up for a few days, but in the meantime will look out for an opening.

The gay little Ozark will be in port to leave tomorrow for all points on White river, Captain Edson is master, John McDonnell and John Hallberton are clerks.

We regret to learn that Captain Miller, of the firm of Levy & Miller, is very ill, but hope that his illness may prove but temporary.

The United States mail steamer Gleaner did not get away last evening, but will positively leave today at five p.m. for Pine Bluff and way landings. Captain John Fenwick is master, and Mr. Patterson has charge of the office.

The Marble City got aground and did not arrive to leave yesterday. Captain Conway will back her out at ten a.m. this morning for Cairo and St. Louis. Mr. Parsons is her clerk.

The Belle Lee was launched successfully at Jeffersonville, Indiana, on Saturday last. The Courier-Journal says, on the morning of the launching she was elegantly painted and dressed with flags, and everybody, everybody grasping each other, and some squatting on the deck, to maintain their equilibrium. As the stern struck the water the great boat doubled in the middle like a heavy bow, and the apparent cracking and crashing of timbers was fearful, creating for a few moments the most intense consternation among the "passengers" as well as those on shore. Some of the ladies screamed audibly, and threw themselves in the arms of their protectors, who were no less frightened than the other sex, and imagined themselves tripping on the brink of eternity. One young lady, who dropped on her knees, was fairly transported, and, while saying her prayers, imagined that she saw four acres of Heaven. The sensation was but of very short duration, for the boat straightened out when she got off the ways and glided across the river as if she had been shot out of a gun. It was a highly successful launch, no timbers having broken or strained sufficient to injure the boat in the slightest degree. The cabin was partially erected on the hull, which added greatly to her appearance in the launch. She sits on the water gracefully and her hull is a model of beauty, giving promise of great speed for the Belle.

MONETARY.

DAILY AVALANCHE OFFICE,
MONDAY, October 21, 1867.

The money market continues active and very stringent. All available capital is kept in constant employment, for the movement of cotton and provisions meet with but little stringency in the banks. Exchange continues stiff; cotton bills ½ discount, and bankers checking on the North and East at par to ¼ premium.

Gold opened in New York at 138½, and closed without material change. Dealers here bought at 138, and held at 139@141. There was little on the market and no demand.

Silver is scarce and passed at 132@134 for halves and quarters.

CITY SCRIP—Is dull at 98@99 buying, and 99@1 selling.

POLICE SCRIP—Is dull and nominally 75@80 in the hands of dealers.

COUNTY SCRIP—Is dull and nominal; can be had of dealers at 70@75.

No movement in stocks or bonds.

Tennessee money is scarce and inactive. Dealers bid as follows: For Bank of Tennessee, old issue, 80; Bank of West Tennessee, 80; Bank of Chattanooga, 10; Bank of Middle Tennessee, 80; City Bank, 85; Merchants' Bank, 80; Northern Bank, 80; Ocoee Bank, 85; Farmers' Bank, 80; Union Bank, 80; Shelbyville Bank, 80; Southern Bank, 80; Traders' Bank, 80; Bank of Knoxville, 80; Commercial Bank, par; Bank of Memphis, par; Bank of the Union, 80; Home Bank, 80; Life and General Insurance Bank, 10; Union Bank certificates, 80; Bank of Commerce, 80; Bank of Paris, 80.

COMMERCIAL.

DAILY AVALANCHE OFFICE,
WEDNESDAY, October 23, 1867.

COTTON—There were few buyers in the market, and a moderate business done, holders not offering freely. The New York market closed dull at 19¾c for middling—a decline of ⅛c since Tuesday, although the Liverpool market is reported active at an advance of ⅛d. Sales were about 30c bale at the following basis:

IMPORTANT CORRESPONDENCE.

The following correspondence between the commission house of Beakley & Brucker, of St. Louis, and Commissioner Rollins of the United States Internal Revenue Department, is of the highest importance to shippers of cotton, and we ask their general attention to it:

ST. LOUIS, October 4, 1867.

Hon. E. A. Rollins, Washington City, D. C.:

DEAR SIR: The undersigned commission merchants of this city would respectfully represent that in the cotton field of the cotton raised in the southeastern part of this State, cotton-seed of four-five to eight-five bales, and that this fact has relations in regard to the transportation of the same, which, if not understood by the officers of the law, may, in this year, become quite an important question. Our city has, since the shipment has been the means of increased sales and activity in the cotton trade, become the principal market for cotton obtained in Missouri to be shipped to this city, subject to the order of the United States Government. The cotton is found to be delivered to the consignee only on the presentation of the bill of lading, and the permit of the collector of the district, authorizing the shipment of the same. We therefore respectfully request that the following shipping points in Missouri as the proper places where the collectors of the several districts shall tax cotton, viz: Point Pleasant, Cottonwood Point, New Madrid, Cape Girardeau and Ironton.

Many heavy advances have been made by our merchants to parties raising cotton in Missouri, and we trust that, in justice to us and to parties, it will be permitted to go forward without further trouble.

We remain, very respectfully,

BEAKLEY & BRUCKER.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF INTERNAL REVENUE,
Washington, October 8, 1867.

GENTLEMEN: I have received your communication of the 4th instant, in which you state that the new regulations in regard to the transportation of cotton from the plantation to the cotton raiser in your State, and request that cotton raised in Missouri be shipped to St. Louis, Cairo, Cape Girardeau, or the Collector of that district, to be delivered to the consignee only upon the presentation of the bill of lading, and the permit to him without at what we here declare. In almost every instance where the latter is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. Be sure and call for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations. Sold by all druggists throughout the world. Price only thirty-five cents per bottle. ### Radical Mass Meeting in Savannah.

Progress of Yellow Fever in Mobile.

Interesting Foreign Intelligence.

RICHMOND, October 22.—This afternoon Hunnicutt, in a speech in Capital square, denounced Northern men, whereupon one of them said he was a damned liar. At this the negroes assembled attempted to mob the man, but instead of this they caught an inoffensive German, and were about to kill him, but the police succeeded in rescuing the man, but they were followed to the National House by negroes, who behaved in a very disorderly manner by throwing stones, etc. All is quiet now, but there is much excitement in regard to the election.

SAVANNAH, October 22.—A large Radical mass meeting of about four hundred negroes and a few whites was held here last night, and addressed by C. H. Hopkins and a few old whites, and Bradley Sims and a few other negroes. There was no disturbance until after the meeting, when there were several collisions between the country and city negroes. The disturbances were promptly suppressed by the police.

HAVANA, October October 22.—Sugar dull; holders firm; sales 9,000 hogsheads at 8⅝@9c.

MOBILE, October 22.—There were six yellow fever interments during the past two days.

DUBLIN, October 21.—The trial of General Nagle, Colonel Warren and other prominent State prisoners, implicated in the Fenian conspiracy, will commence on the 26th of November before a special commissioner. It is said that the United States Government will provide for the defence of Warren and Nagle.

LIVERPOOL, October 21—Evening.—The Royal Bank of Liverpool has suspended payments and closed its doors. Liabilities estimated at £450,000, and it is thought the bank will not be able to resume business.

PARIS, October 21—Night.—Official assurance has been given that the government will not find it necessary to send the military expedition across the Alps, and the force which has been massed for that purpose will be greatly reduced.

Rentes buoyant.

FLORENCE, October 21—Night.—The King has summoned General Cialdiana to Florence and intrusted him with the ministry. The people suspect that the cabinet is being formed in the interest of the French Emperor, and petitions are pouring in from all parts of Italy protesting against the desertion of the National Government.

PARIS, October 21, 12 P.M.—A dispatch from Toulon states that an order was received countermanding the sailing of the fleet for the relief of Rome, and that the troops were dis-imbarking from their transports, and returning to their barracks.

FLORENCE, October 21.—Ratazzi addressed a large crowd of people to-night, who were making demonstrations in favor of Garibaldi. He declared, in the most emphatic manner, that Victor Emanuel would maintain the honor of the country in the crisis through which it was now passing.

Garibaldi has issued a proclamation which adds to the prevailing excitement. He exhorts the people of Italy to persevere in their patriotic struggle, and bids them hope that the national honor may yet be redeemed.

SPECIAL FROM THE STRIFE WORLD.

Intensely Interesting Revelations.

Report From a New Arrival.

EDWARD G. WARRINGTON.

I feel very singular on coming here to-day. So many strange experiences seem to throng around me, that I can scarcely command myself. I belonged to a company of sharpshooters attached to an Alabama regiment, and I was sent here in an engagement we had with the Twenty-second Massachusetts. Was taken a prisoner, and died of my wounds. I remember distinctly of being waited upon by the chaplain of the regiment, who paid me a passing visit after I had been pronounced mortally wounded. He spoke very kindly to me, and told me I was very sure to be able to come back and say to my friends I was leaving what I then regretted so much I was not able to say. He s. ys, "You can come back. The heaven you speak of is not far off as you suppose. You may be in heaven and still here."

He then asked me who I had in what he called the spirit-land. I told him I had many friends there, and he said, "They will meet you when you die." I found he had told me the truth. And I believe I should have remained unconscious of the power of return, perhaps for a long time, if I had not constantly thought of what he told me, and so I made myself very busy in finding the way of return; and in my search I found him and he assisted me.

My name, sir, was Edward G. Warrington. I have a mother in Alabama. I was nineteen years of age. My only brother had been shot earlier in the war. Since my death I have learned that my mother has been at times called insane. But I am possessed with the idea that if I can make her understand where I am and how we can all return, the insanity will pass away and she will be in some respects herself again. I am anxious to do this for my own sake and for hers, because she is constantly calling me day and night, and so I am bound in that atmosphere of unrest that surrounds her—in that sphere of sorrow that was born of my death. I want her to know, and we all want her to know, that we can return, and are satisfied and happy here, and would not come back to dwell permanently on earth if we could do so. My mother is constantly saying I had so much to live for, and there was so much for me to do—constantly reproaching God for taking me in the manner I was taken away from her, and with my enemies, she says:

I want her to know I was kindly cared for, and that more was done for me where I was that could have been done had I fallen on our own side; for at that time nurses were very scarce, and it was my experience that our surgeons were few and hard to get hold of, and there were a variety of unhappy circumstances attending that part of our army just then; so it was well that I died where I did and as I did. And all the vague stories that have been borne to her ears with regard to the inhuman treatment of the Yankees to me and others are all false—every one of them.

I would like that Mr. Tyler, of Tennessee, if he is on the earth, and I presume he is—I have heard that he is interested in these things—and, as he knows my mother well, I ask that he do what he can toward bearing my message to her and enlightening her upon these things. I am very thankful to you, sir, for all you may do for me, and hope to repay you, sometime. Sept. 16.

The foregoing is from the Banner of Light, a paper devoted to Spiritualism, and will interest those who are addicted to the marvellous. We do not know to whom of the many Tylers allusion is made, and commend it to our friend of the Ledger, as being more intimately acquainted with the several branches than ourselves, to transmit the desired intelligence.

NOTICE TO GAS CONSUMERS.

IN compliance with a pledge made in their communication of February last, to the Honorable Mayor and Board of Aldermen, the

Memphis Gaslight Company

HAVE DETERMINED TO

Reduce the Price

On their sales of Gas, supplied

On and After the 1st of December Next

To the Lowest Rates then deemed possible following

A SMALL PROFIT

On the capital invested, and pledge themselves that the price thus established shall range among

THE LOWEST RATES CHARGED

In other Southern and Southwestern cities

Their Apparatus, lately at great expense improved and extended, affords a light pure, strong and brilliant a gaslight as that supplied anywhere in the United States.

In reference to a manifestly weakened opposition in business, which they do not deem possible, the Company hereby give notice to their patrons and the public, that in case of an actual competition they will supply their demands at

One-third or Less than One-third

The rates established by such competition.

Their Works were constructed with a view of remunerating the owners for their investment, as well as for public convenience. Notwithstanding such intention they will ever sell or oct7 President.

A GOOD COOKING STOVE

Is one of the most necessary and desirable articles of household economy, and if properly managed will promote the health, comfort and happiness of every member of the family.

No Cooking Stoves

Have ever been brought before the public which obtained so great a popularity or met with more favor than

FILLEY'S

CHARTER OAK

AND

PLYMOUTH ROCK.

OVER 100,000 OF THESE CELEBRATED

COOKING STOVES

Have been sold under full guarantee, and we offer them as references wherever found.
